Many of our dogs have been banished, forgotten, left behind, or are simply roaming the streets to survive. Most end up in overcrowded California shelters where they await a human to come and rescue them. Unfortunately, the California shelters cannot keep them all long enough to be adopted. Therefore, many of these wonderful, adoptable animals are being euthanized each day to make room for more. The cycle continues. Waggin Trails' Rescue Foundation is committed to making a difference.

Waggin'Trails Rescue Foundation was founded to help the animals who face euthanasia in the California shelter system and begins each trip in Napa, California. Because we rescue dogs who would not otherwise be given a chance, Waggin' Trails Rescue Foundation has become an organization willing to help when time is up for certain animals. We make the commitment to these "underdogs" because we have seen first-hand what amazing companions they become.

The problem of homeless animals in California continues to worsen in this challenging economy. We have been called to act and to help the ever-rising population of animals who beg for rescue. In an effort to help, we have been working to rehome animals locally and with out-of-state rescues to transport animals to areas such as Oregon, Idaho, Washington, and Western Canada where shelters are less impacted and these animals are readily adopted. We partner with organizations sharing our rescue philosophy and procedures that speak to a high standard in order to ensure these worthy animals are placed in excellent homes. In order to save even more animals, we are continuously searching for new places that they may soon call home.
